

Birth Time Verification - A Study

May 26, 2005

Rangarajan Krishnamoorthy
ranga@mmsindia.com

For this experiment I ran my program on several AA-rated birth data provided by Tin Win. My program determines if there is a connection between the ASC sublord and MOON starlord. If there is a connection, then the birth time is correct, else it is incorrect. This is based on the rule proposed by Shri.M.P.Shanmugham in "Astro secrets and KP", Volume - 2, 2003 Edition, pp. 80 - 85.

Definition of "Connection" as Used in the Program

1) For the purposes of calculation, a planet A is deemed to be "Connected with" a planet B if and only if any of the following is true:

- a) A and B are the same planet
- b) A is the sign/star/sub/subsub lord of B
- c) B is the sign/star/sub/subsub lord of A
- d) A and B are in the same sign
- e) B aspects A (by Vedic aspect)
- f) A is in the star/sub/subsub of a NODE and the NODE is an agent for B

2) Agency Rule:

NODE is an agent for PLANET if and only if any of the following is true:

- a) NODE and PLANET are in the same sign
- b) NODE is in the sign of PLANET
- c) PLANET aspects NODE (by vedic aspect)

Approach Taken

Since the supplied data are AA-rated, we assume that these are "correct". We expect the connection rule to "pass" in all these cases. First I ran the program on the supplied data (some records were excluded for convenience) and determined the number of passes and fails of the rule.

Next, I "mutated" the data by adding 10 minutes to each record. Obviously, the changed record must be "incorrect" for that person. We expect the connection rule to "fail" in all these cases. I ran the program once again on the corrupted data and determined the number of passes and fails of the rule.

The outcome is shown in the following table:

Description	Passes	Fails
Correct Records (109)	85	24
Incorrect Records (109)	88	21

An effective birth rectification technique (BRT) is one that is able to discriminate between correct and incorrect birth times. Ideally, it should pass all correct birth times and fail all incorrect birth times.

The effectiveness of the rule can be expressed as a measure of its passes and fails.

Let N be the number of records known to be correct. By mutating the correct records we can get N incorrect records.

Let N_P be the number of correct records passed by the rule, and N_F be the number of incorrect records failed by the rule. In ideal BRT should have $N_P = N_F = N$.

Then the pair $\langle N_P/N, N_F/N \rangle$ can represent the effectiveness of a BRT¹. For convenience, the numbers may be expressed as percentages.

Effectiveness of Shanmugham's Technique = <78, 19>

It is very important to remember that Shanmugham's rule only tries to determine if ANY birth could have taken place at a location L and a time T . It does not attempt to establish whether a person P was born at L at time T . So, when the rule passes a time T (at L), it just means that T is an acceptable birth time. It is possible that no one was born at that time. Because the connection rule is "weak", when the rule fails, the denial is quite strong - "No one could have been born at this time".

This raises an interesting question: What are the fundamental criteria to be satisfied by a birth rectification technique? Is it enough if the technique determines (like Shanmugham's rule) whether T is an acceptable birth time at L , or should it determine whether T is an acceptable birth time at L for P ?

Below, the actual AA-rated data along with program's output appear first, followed by the mutated data and program's output for those data. To make it obvious for readers, the mutated records are marked with "**".

Feel free to let me know if you notice errors or have suggestions on improving the study.

START OF CORRECT DATA

Date of birth: 2-Jan-1938 [15:42:0]
Lat: 40:51 North
Longt: 74:7 West
TZone: -5, TMode: Standard, DST: 0
ASC sublord (Rahu) connected to Moon starlord (Sun)

Date of birth: 4-Jan-1920 [17:52:0]

¹For this metric to be meaningful, N should be large. It is therefore important to collect a large sample of correct records.
